

About Artist

Louisa Johanna Wolmarans, artist, painter, sculpturor and teacher. South African born, Louisa Wolmarans, matriculated at the Colleyville High School in Dallas, Texas, USA with distinctions in theater arts, theater production, interior design and painting with an average of 95%. After high school she studied at AFDA- School of motion picture. Her passion and interest lies in the film industry and that of artist (sculpturor, painter). For this reason she has equipped herself with different skills such as cosmetology, make-up, designing and making of cloths, sculpturing, and painting. She has a wide spectrum of work ability, thus willing to take on any challenge that comes her way. Louisa has a passion to teach, and for that reason she is also involved in a school for disabled children as her way of giving back to the community what she has achieved as an artist. Louisa is now actively involved in teaching children and students the art of painting as well as the art of acting. Her priority is to teach people to improve their artistic skills and include a variety of techniques and training to become better artists. Throughout the course she will be teaching the following topics: PAINTING Sketching Drawing with a grid Drawing freehand Drawing to scale Painting techniques Texture techniques The color wheel. Primary, Secondary and Tertiary colors Color mixing Creative classes where the student get a chance to do their own thing. ACTING AND THE FILM INDUSTRY Acting Visual effects Production Design Writing Directing